Co-Curricular Activities are non-credit bearing experiences or activities that advance learning objectives, such as social and cultural understanding, leadership development, career or personal development, community engagement, or communication skills. Examples include: involvement in student clubs and organizations, volunteer experience in community organizations, service on a University committee, spearheading an initiative on or off-campus, organizing an event or a field excursion, completing a shadowing experiences, serving as a tutor.

Possible Types of Co-Curricular Activities that Departments and Programs Might Foster:

- Student advisory or activities board
- Orientation events
- Field excursions
- Book or film clubs
- Symposium
- Student research conference